CLOSE TO THE DEAD – Scheduled for this year

Raising one's hands down existentially once is a definite degenerative disorder (a cluster B factor). The degeneracy of raising one's hands down existentially twice should be listed as a DSM 5 genetic and mental disorder, and the inability to raise one's hands existentially as "imbecilic throughput schizophrenia"—ade ronke

On January 7th 2026, I was stalked, harassed and arrested by the state police. The reasons for this is, in my view, the intellectual and daring proclivities in my book, A Case in Point. There are other reasons to be stated in this book. If every indication of my life doesn't suggest this to you my readers, it is calling it: if I wasn't to be me. would I not be dead? But I am cognizantly alive by my own recognizance. In other words I was arrested for being who and what I am.

What is to follow is false imprisonment, and a true story of great injustice and ceaseless attempts at cover up while I meet unsavory criminals along the way. If this hadn't happened to me, I couldn't have conceived of it. It happened to me. I must go beyond mere conceptions

Author's Note

My readers, wherever you are in the world, it would be far from ideal or humane to ask you to treat Open Knowledge merely fractionally as you treat OPEN-AI. Only one of the two, like mine, is human. Support my cause, a voice of insight, reason and knowledge in the age of #Modern AI systems. Support the human cause.

If this work connects with you intellectually, spiritually, emotionally, or in any other way personal, it is free. If it doesn't, and you're rather of a different preference and won't ever come back to my works. It is free as well. Graces. I have never sought to run the world or rule it. Not my thing. I do seek to connect with humanity and make cross generational differences with practical, emotional and spiritual intelligence—matters connecting humanity and saving lives like mine against the odds life brings that I do know about intimately. Works are usually accounts of life, nature, science, politics and more in experiential reality. It is a privilege to be alive despite what I have been through. And I don't intend to take this deserved privilege lightly.

The work as well as others like it can be found on my website available free at www.edewlogics.com. To support free works like this and others available on my site, please support the free books for life cause. Thank you.

On the stupidity of one and the other

Upon closer observation, it becomes apparent that every strong upsurge of power in the public sphere, be it of a political or a religious nature, infects a large part of humankind with stupidity. It would even seem that this is virtually a sociological-psychological law. The power of the one needs the stupidity of the other.

Dietrich Bonhoeffer

It is indubitable that spiritual people are usually drawn to like-minded people. I have had a series on Bonhoeffer long before I was persecuted for my intellect by what is now conspicuous from the words of Bonhoeffer, a set of stupid people. They are indeed this. Stupidity is a disease of the mind. And people like Voughn B2657, Bruce B1106, and co are diseased. It is clear that stupidity extends beyond intellectual decay. It implies moral decay implicitly. All attempts at cover-up are, for instance, implicit in moral decay. They offer nothing good to the individual or the public.

My pull towards Bonhoeffer is no doubt spiritual and instant. I met him by chance. And then wondered why I was never introduced to him in college. He was a German Lutheran pastor who was imprisoned during World War II because he dared to stand for the principles he recommended, and stood for, in the midst of societal chaos and moral decay. He was hanged for his "crimes". He wrote his "crimes", giving us this amazing and priceless essay on stupidity. He stood for his "crimes". He died for his "crimes". My readers, how my suffering pales compared to his. The spirit is a tuning station that absorbs the personhood of the tune detector. I celebrate those who deserve to be celebrated. My spirit cannot lie or be a lie, especially in the presence of evil, a presence that was consistently proximal during the length of my persecutions.

I had a brief comparison to Henry David Thoreau as I was reminded of him. He is a great author who wrote Civil Disobedience because he refused to recognize the state of slavery. Great, unforgettable minds. He makes me believe life is rather what happens to you than what you become. But it is never merely a belief system for me. For spiritual people, it could sometimes be the need to become because of persecutions, that is, because of what happens to you. People like these, non-conformists, are extremely hard to find. They are also incomparable.

There is a great simplicity to me, a humility of being you can only observe if you are proximal, decent-minded, and open-minded in approach. That is because I take great care not to reckon what may poison my mind. Granted, I am not easily influenced by others. My mind is critical, with a strong grasp of the psychophysiological, because of my personality, especially introversion, exposure to trauma, and homelessness. In other words, there is a strength to me and my being that isn't cheap, one that most people cannot afford. Yet, I am forever exposed to the infection Bonhoeffer talks about, the one that "infects a large part of humankind with stupidity". It affects me not as a stupid person but as an individualist plagued by the victimizing effect of stupidity. This sociopsychological law imposed by the idiots upon the idiots or as you may in the corridors of "power and control," that is, this supposed commonality, which is inherently stupidity embedded in the supposed power of "unity," that is "The power of the one needs the stupidity of the other." Ever looked at a situation my readers, in which you wondered who was stupid and who was stupider?

Politics and religion are two of the most infectious aspects of human life. They are also the most stupidly prone. It is too easy in religion for pastors to prescribe a political candidate and for the congregation to contribute their votes accordingly, even if the candidate is not in their interests. Politics absorbs stupidity because it is of the stupid to assume proximity to power as power. It is, as he says, true that every upsurge in power or supposition of such infects large multitudes. It is difficult to be a decent, dignified, and rational member of society and not agree with Bonhoeffer that stupidity is a sociopsychological menace.

The stupid are hardly affected by their stupidity. They lounge in it, especially because they are the larger faction of society, and then luxuriate with others. Stupidity owns the majority and is easily sustainable, if not rewarded. The stupid never make a good dent in the world. They are usually on the other side of true progress or new defining foundations for the freedom, liberty, or optimization of and for future generations. The mass stupidity of people represented as power is usually a slippery slope that could culminate in disaster or catastrophe. And a lack of education or understanding of such and its limits is an indefinite disaster waiting to happen in some form or another.

As for me, I am determined to be more of myself and to be open and loud about it, unlike I was before the undeserved persecutions. May the stupid and evil get what they deserve in the end. And may the God Bonhoeffer believed in when he committed his life to his good cause say Amen to that. Otherwise. It is my usual prayer to invite all good spirits, dead or alive, to rally around me and support me. Especially because my cause is indubitably good.
